It is easy to sell and grow in boom times, but the people that think big (and bigger!) are the ones that improve and thrive in any market. They balance getting things done today with an eye on future trends. They know how to build a great brand. They know how to be productive and financially smart. And they know that relationships matter the most.

For the first time at a single event in Boise, Idaho, three dynamic speakers will share their insights on the tools and resources that successful people around the world utilize. Thought-provoking, entertaining, and insightful, this event will inspire you to have mentoring, branding, and technology be your competitive edge and help make you a more effective person in life and business.
