Kids Dump for Hunger

IDAHO FALLS - The holiday season may be long over, but the season of giving lives on.

Albertsons partnered up with the 'Dump for Hunger' food drive today to help people remember to give even after the holidays are over.

This afternoon kids came to donate nonperishable items at Albertsons on 17th and Holmes in Idaho Falls for the local food bank.

Albertsons hopes to collect enough donations to fill up the big truck. In exchange kids could take a picture with the giant cat truck parked in front of the store.

"They like big trucks, kids like big trucks. You know an opportunity to get a picture on a big truck and worthy of a good cause. It'll go to the local food banks," said Albertson's worker Chuck McCracken. Albertsons and Western States are also matching the amount donated by the public.
